Stance:	Customer objects to the Planning Application
Reasons for comment:	- Trees and Landscaping
Comments:	The tree is subject to a TPO for a reason.It is a mature oak of some standing and is very important to the landscape.There is a need for this species of tree in an area dominated by evergreens. The current developer of the site knew of the trees existence when he purchased the site and it was subject to a TPO. The tree roots will not have an impact on the house foundations as they are piled. TPO's should be respected and complied with to maintain the quality of the environment for today and the future.

Kind regards
