Comments:	As neighbours to the farm, we strongly support this application It is great to have a return of active agriculture to the area, for livestock to use the land rather than it sitting empty at the mercy of development. British agriculture has continued to struggle against cheap intensive farming away from the UK. I would rather eat beef raised across the road than across the channel This is exactly what should be encouraged and supported by local planning rather than building 1000s of unaffordable houses being built on local countryside

Kind regards
