Reasons for comment:	- Design - Loss of General Amenity
Comments:	I object to the proposal as designed. I live opposite the applicant and I have full view of the wall in question. It appears to be about 2 metres high when viewed from the road (my property). Even if this is built in traditional "Sussex stone", as opposed to red bricks, it will be a material change that will alter the character of the property and our little hamlet. It would look very imposing and quite out of place.

A better option to which I'd support would be a traditional (in keeping with a grade 2 listed property) stone wall, about a metre high, and then a fence/shrub combination for the top metre. This would ensure that the property is in keeping with its heritage.

Kind regards
