Good morning Kevin,

The stockpile wasn't as uniform as it's drawn and it was also dispersed in phases. Therefore, areas were available ahead of others. The timeframe for when it was sent off and then returned, took longer than originally anticipated which account for dates in the final report. Although we're advised of a standard timeframe, rarely are the labs capable of sticking to these – so, a crossover is evident when formal issues are released though communication remains throughout to maintain programme.
