Hello,

I am a resident of a local house that backs onto the green. I am strongly against building on the green

[REDACTED]

There is enough housing being built which isnt even finished yet you dont need to build more housing. Also most of the larger towns around Horsham still have loads of housing that hasn't been fully utilised either. So I dont know why you are looking to build on a small patch of land that everyone in the area wants when you havent even used or finished off other housing yet.

Some people to into house for certain demands in this case I moved to have a green next to my house. Everyone I speak to is angry about this. Not only that the fact you put up leaflets so close to Christmas with a short window also tells me your are using con man tactics against us. The government keep thinking the population is stupid and doesn't know what you're up to. The British people do not like the current government and are sick of it trying to confirm us. Its time for local councils to stick up for the locals thats ome of your primary roles that you have seem to forgotten. Covid has taught all of us that we need space. If you want Horsham to stay a happy town stop building in every square foot you find.

Kind regards
