Comments:	Although on a smaller scale than the two recently refused applications for this site, this is still residential development outside the built-up area boundary on agricultural land in the countryside. The proposal would move the edge of the built up area so that the adjacent fields and paddocks would become vulnerable to future development. It's on the edge of this small village with poor transport links - the amenities in Henfield are over two miles away and it's a mile round trip to the local Small Dole shop. The Neighbourhood Plan has not identified this site.

These fields are important for wildlife, being close to the Mill Stream than runs to the river Adur and almost directly opposite Woodsmill Nature Reserve.

If this is allowed, water neutrality would need to be proved possible and enforced because of the sensitivities of the nearby Arun valley; and the adverse effects on the habitat and wildlife that depends on it should be mitigated as much as possible, with rigorous enforceable conditions.

Kind regards
