Reasons for comment:

- Overdevelopment

Comments:

I object to this development, I cannot believe this will be built inspite of the farms, woods and natural areas that will further be decimated, we have the least amount of woodland in Europe, we are in the middle of an insect apocalypse, everyone goes on about the loss of the natural world yet we continue to pour ashfelt over everything and greenwash by landscaping the edges and giving these developments green names, for ex near this development there is Forge wood, [REDACTED], as in torn down for lego land cheap so called housing where the front room is in the kitchen is in the living room type nonsense, woods decimated, so we have a housing problem, I say to that no we don't we have a population problem because of successive useless governments, England not UK is sixth most populated country in the world, look it up, so what do we do, continue to flood the country with people and just pave over everything, not good enough!
