

Heritage statement

Long Platt is a grade 2 listed cottage in the conservation area of Nutbourne. The gas meter is situated in a downstairs bathroom which is a brick extension to main stone building. The wall behind it and the pipework is in great need of repair and the whole wall needs to be insulated in order to stop the room being damp. This cannot be achieved with the current position of the meter. I have been advised that gas meters are more suitable outside and the relocated position that I propose will be very convenient to access and will not be at all visible from the street or front of the house.
