Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I am writing in support of the planning application for the proposed single detached dwelling in Thakeham, submitted to Horsham District Council. In my view, the proposal represents a well-considered and proportionate form of development. A single detached house is modest in scale and reflects the prevailing character of properties in the surrounding area. The design and layout appear sympathetic to the village setting and would sit comfortably within the existing pattern of development.

The site's relationship to nearby housing means the dwelling would form a natural continuation of the built-up area, rather than an intrusion into open countryside. I do not believe the proposal would result in overdevelopment of the plot or cause any significant harm to the rural character of Thakeham.

Furthermore, I consider that the development would not give rise to unacceptable impacts on neighbouring amenity in terms of privacy, outlook, or light, nor would it generate any meaningful increase in traffic on local roads.

Overall, this is a modest and appropriate proposal that would integrate well with its surroundings and contribute positively to the local housing supply.

Kind regards
