Subject: RE: HDC Consultation Form DC/26/0006

Hi Tamara

Would normally not object to an estate having a communal bin-store/area like this..... however.....my previous comments still apply.

The wheeled drag distance is too far for plots 4 through to 9.

If any of them were to require our assisted collection service, which is for elderly, disabled, infirm.....residents who cannot physically wheel their bins out...we would have to reject the applications.

With our trucks not being able to access the site, this will also require our truck to reverse from The Daisy Croft up the road, round the corner and up to the bin-store....which is far from ideal.

Would strongly advise that the developers allow access for our vehicles, use the designated turning head, and use the HDC supplied refuse strategy.

I can only see the current plan causing multiple complaints upon completion from residents.

I assume however that the residents will be informed of the planned communal bin-store, so will be aware of their duties to wheel their own bins up to this area.

HDC will not amend the refuse strategy upon completion.

Kind regards

Josh Ives
