

[REDACTED]
Sent: 26 May 2026 09:56

To: Halima.Chowdhury [REDACTED]

Subject: DC/26/0588 - Fwd: Next door window

----- Forwarded message -----

[REDACTED]
Date: Mon, May 25, 2026 at 10:51 AM

Subject: Comments for Planning Application DC/26/0588
[REDACTED]

Halima,

I think it was yourself who visited this property in the last week or so, and you took some photos from my garden of the fenestration amendment. I have submitted my opposition to the submitted plans based on invasion of privacy. I have attached three photos taken from my garden which shows this window is the only one invading our space. I couldn't find a way to attach them as part of my online submission.

What really irks me, is that two professional companies (the architect and builder) would know the requirement for seeking planning permission and yet took a deliberate action to avoid submitting one. There does not appear to be any penalty for these companies in not abiding by the rules, and seeking forgiveness for work already completed in the "knowledge" they will get away with it. For me, all instances like this should require the building to be returned to the original planning before an amendment and changes can take place. Surely this would stop this malpractice?

In light of the work already being completed, I am expecting it to be accepted, again without any penalty. I have tried to be reasonable in suggesting an alternative as this window is intrusive into our private space.

As it is a live planning application, I am not expecting a response from you as it may compromise the proceedings, however I do hope you can take the attached photos into consideration with my formal objection.

Regards,

[REDACTED]

