Second email with attachments.

T42 is a poor specimen but after surgery authorised a couple of years ago, it has picked up. It was difficult to know what might regenerate, but we can now see that two limbs have nothing to offer. It would be good if, while work on T44 is undertaken, these dead limbs on T42 could be removed.

The request is to try to shape what remains in the hope further regeneration will give a better shape. Some discretion is needed here as I cannot schedule what is to be done. Clearly minimum loss is the aim.

Many thanks,

Peter.
