Comments:	Horsham is sadly loosing all it's green space and the feel that I have always loved about Horsham is definitely fading. It was always a lovely market town which seemed like it was in the countryside. Now especially with the huge development of Mowbray & around Broadbridge Heath it's just turning in to an over developed town with poor amunities that can't cope with the amount of people we currently have. Supposedly these is a housing need but I don't see this & why can't you build in empty office space rather than build on green land. Lets not loose anymore green space and try to keep Horsham the great town it currently is. Our supermarkets also can't currently cope, even if there is thought when developing an infrastructure these never materialise. I.e where is the supermarket in Kilnwood Vale or Mowbray?

Kind regards
