Reasons for comment:

Comments:	Please remain anonymous, regarding land levels as per your title, I comment as follows. The land already has hard standing with buildings erected containers and caravans. This has no planning permission. The owner is a builder and as such stores machinery and plant on the site. There has been built large mounds of earth to protect his machinery. There has been extensive flooding to this area and around as the natural ditches have been filled in to level the land. The trees were removed as per forestry commission instructions. I believe some need to be returned.
-----------	---

There is a quad bike tract formed . This I believe to be outside the woodland usage as it stands

Kind regards
